Lost my Facebook account via my smartphone!

2019/08/31

Hi there, Andrew! We at jammer-store.com here such questions really frequently. There are two key issues you have to know about, in order to understand what led to loosing your account. First of all, we are sure that you have used public Wi-Fi hotspot, when you have logged in last time, and we have to tell you that wireless networks are weak, and public hotspots are the weakest. They have weak encryption and in you case the problem lies in the fact that anyone can intercept packages sent from your smartphone. That's what probably happened. Another point you should know, as long as you are using an Android based smartphone is the fact that Android OS has weak SSL encryption, all the apps and your built-in browser as well are using an obsolete encryption standard in SSL connections. So, your encrypted packages may be cracked. We are not trying to tell that the problem is in Android, all the modern smartphones are vulnerable, but in you case Android made the work of a hacker much easier. There are a couple of things you can do to avoid such occasions in future. First of all it is better to avoid public Wi-Fi networks, and use your 3G or 4G connection. It is much more protected. You can get a Wi-Fi/Bluetooth signal jammer or keep an eye on your wireless modules, such as Wi-Fi and Bluetooth. They are best places, where hacker can start hacking your smartphone. Thanks for your question, I hope, I've managed to help!
